

WASH GOODS

The balance of our stock of Summer Wash Goods we place on sale at prices that will dispose of them quickly, comprising—

Lawns, Batistes, Organdies, Challies, Gingham, Satteens, etc.

They are all conveniently arranged on tables, with prices attached, so that selections can easily be made. Come early.

L. S. AYRES & CO.

For Universal Requirements Never Is The Useful Rocking Chair Excessive.

Chairs and Furniture of all kinds

FASTMAN, SCHLEICHER
FURNITURE, & LEE'S
Carpets, Draperies, Wall Paper.
The Largest House in the State

A BOLD BURGLAR AT BAY

George Pursley, in Escaping from a House, Runs Into a Policeman.

He Had Done Two Jobs During the Night, and Had Badly Frightened Two Ladies—Held by His Coat Tail.

By a piece of clever work patrolman Winn and Ballard yesterday morning captured a burglar and recovered a valuable watch. Immediately after roll call, at 4:30 o'clock, Ballard started to his home in the northern part of the city. As he passed the home of Dr. C. F. Johnston, at No. 383 North Illinois street, he was startled by the frightened screams of women, followed instantly by a crash of glass. The form of a man then came through the window of the Johnston home. The burglar struck the ground and then bounded up, and the officer could detect by the dim light the fleeing form of a young negro. He drew his pistol and fired, but the man failed to stop. At this point patrolman Winn, who was also returning home, changed to be in the vicinity and joined his brother officer in the chase, which led for several squares. The patrolmen were only able to keep within sight of the negro, and whenever opportunity afforded fired a shot in the direction of the man. As the chase proceeded a number of citizens, attracted from their beds by the pistol shots, joined the officers and the negro was finally run to cover in the yard of Robert Turner, a colored man residing on West Second street. In the yard the officers lost sight of their man, but after a search pulled him out from under a woodened. He gave his name as George Pursley and was taken to the police station.

The officers, returning to the scene where the excitement originated, discovered that Pursley had been in the act of robbing the house of Dr. Johnston when one of the inmates, awakened by a slight noise, had seen the man and given the alarm. The burglar had effected an entrance by prying open the window shutters, and when discovered had boldly leaped through the window almost into the arms of the police. It was also found that earlier in the night Pursley had entered the boarding house of Mrs. Simpson, at No. 38 North Illinois street, and succeeded in finding his way to the bed chamber of one of the lady guests. The latter awoke to find a man standing at her bedside, but he represented a scream as she realized that a black hand was stealing under her pillow. Instead of fainting, as would of course have been expected under such circumstances, the woman arose from her corner and grasping the intruder by the coat tail, attempted to hold him, at the same time crying for help. The thief, however, threw away from her grasp and fled before the house was fairly awake.

Pursley told the officers that he lived at No. 318 Indiana avenue, and that he and his wife had been married in the city, and he was disappointed for the landlady of the house, Mrs. Julia Hamilton, produced a gold watch which she said Pursley had put up for his board. The watch bore the initials "F. P." and later in the day was given to him by the officers. A young man reading with his uncle, Henry Talbot, of the firm of Dickson & Talbot, Mr. Potter received the watch some time since from a relative, and on the night of July 4 the article was stolen from his room by a burglar, who ransacked the house. The prisoner is but seventeen years old.

KENTUCKY WHITE-CAP STILE

Revealed in a Letter Picked Up Yesterday in University Park.

A White Cap letter was found in University Park yesterday afternoon, but it seems that all the parties to whom reference is made live at Louisville. The letter is addressed to James Brooks, a waiter, at 510 Second street, Louisville, and as a style of White-cap letter writing in Kentucky, the following is submitted:

I was requested by a certain society, of which I am clerk, to warn you that your conduct of late has been very bad, and that you do not do better and come home by 9 o'clock we will "whitcap" you. You have been watching the trees in our back yard night and day, and we got up a club to make all the bad niggers of the city of Louisville root, and we are going to do it if we have to kill every nigger in the town. If you will do better, you wear a white piece of string in your coat on the left side buttonhole, so the man what is watching you will know you have promised to turn over a good leaf. If you do not wear the string the club will think you defy them, and will take you out of the house some night and punish you. You warn nigger George at your house, too. He has been bad. Your enemy, if you don't do better.

L. C. S.

There are profane ornaments of skulls bones and daggers on the letter.

What a Blazing Trolley Did.

A trolley on an electric car became ablaze at the corner of Washington and Illinois streets last night, and besides attracting a large crowd, it delayed traffic for a half hour.

New bed-room sets at Wm. L. Elder's.

AT THE ADVENTISTS' CAMP

A Hygienic Dining Tent Where the Menu Is Purely a Vegetarian One.

Rev. W. A. Colcord, of Battle Creek, Mich., Preaches a Sermon Against Certain Religious Legislation—The Other Services.

EVENT-DAY Adventists are meeting in the grove at North Indianapolis, and are holding one of the most interesting sessions that has ever been held by this denomination in this State. The number of tents pitched has increased by one-half, and the general attendance by more than that ratio. Subjects of vital interest to the denomination are being discussed both religious and temporal.

Elder A. W. Bartlett, pastor of the camp, is in charge and superintends the spiritual interests of the meeting. The principal speakers are Elders J. N. Loughborough, of Chicago; E. W. Bamworth, of Iowa; W. A. Colcord and W. W. Prescott, of Michigan, president of the Battle Creek Seventh-day Adventist College. There are one hundred tents stretched, which is the largest ever had, although it is only a workers' meeting, the camp meeting proper beginning next Tuesday.

A large tent is stretched over the children's meetings, which are becoming one of the most interesting features of the camp. It is directed by Mrs. Allie Craig, of this city, and Miss Teresa Thompson, of Terre Haute. The attendance thus far is about one hundred. Simple Bible stories are told in the most illustrative manner to the great delight of the little ones.

John Haefner, near to death, suffering from an injury at the base of the brain, which was received at an early hour Saturday morning. The injury was presumably received by being thrown from his buggy against an electric pole on East Washington street. Haefner has been unconscious ever since the accident occurred, and has, therefore, been unable to give any account of how he came by his injuries. Haefner is a manipulator of his precinct in the interest of the Democratic party, and had attended the convention at the Hendricks Club hall on Friday night. When the convention adjourned, at 1:30 Saturday morning, in company with ex-Sheriff Henry Langenberg and a man named Youngman, he started home. All three of the men had been drinking more or less, and Haefner had been on their way home stopped in a saloon at No. 770 East Washington street where they once more imbibed freely. The dawn was approaching and the three men were on their way home, but Haefner was so drunk that he was unable to remain on his feet. The trio remained until the proprietor ejected them from the place, and Haefner, in a moment of confusion, fell from his buggy and struck his head on the base of an electric pole.

Haefner and Langenberg got into the former's buggy and drove east on Washington street, and Haefner, who was in front of the saloon, Langenberg left the buggy somewhere between the saloon and Haefner's home on Ohio street, a short distance east of the saloon. Haefner was found upon the street in an unconscious condition, and it is supposed that he fell against the effects of his drinking and the fact that he was so drunk that he was unable to remain on his feet. He was taken to his home by friends and Dr. R. W. Long was called in to attend him. The doctor's examination showed that the injury was very dangerous and might result fatally. The injury to the base of the brain was, at the first examination, thought to be a fracture of the skull, but this proved to be a mistake. The condition of the man, however, is still very critical and Dr. Long said that the things that he had to do was to keep him alive until the swelling of the brain subsided. The injured man was by no means out of danger, there being a likelihood of inflammation setting in, which would be very dangerous, and in all probability result in death. During Saturday and Sunday Haefner remained unconscious, and his condition was such that he was unable to give any account of how he came by his injuries. A number of intimate friends who called at the house yesterday were refused admission.

The family and friends of the injured man made every effort to keep the fact of his having been hurt from becoming generally known, and were very reticent in talking about the affair.

Haefner is a middle-aged man, and has a wife and family. He owns a meat stand at 29 East Market street, in partnership with Louis Wabnitz.

MOTHER AND DAUGHTER HURT.

Mrs. S. S. Hayes and Daughter Suffer in a Bad Runaway.

In a runaway accident yesterday afternoon, the wife and daughter of S. S. Hayes, residing at No. 315 West Vermont street, were seriously bruised and injured. The accident happened near the No. 2 hook and ladder company, on South Delaware street, shortly after dinner. Mrs. Hayes, her wife and daughter drove from their home to the residence of Mrs. Hayes' mother, at the corner of Delaware and Duncan streets, where they took dinner. About 2 o'clock they were out driving and Mrs. Hayes and daughter seated themselves in the vehicle. The husband opened the gate of the stable lot and his wife drove into the street, but before the horse could get in the stable lot the horse took a fright at the noise made by a group of playing children and started to run. Mrs. Hayes, who was very nervous, attempted to stop the animal, but was unsuccessful, and within the next few rods the buggy brought up against a telegraph pole. The occupants were thrown out and dragged several feet before the horse could extricate himself from the tangle, which he did by totally demolishing the vehicle. Mrs. Hayes was carried into a hook and ladder house, suffering from bruises and a severe shock, caused by the sight of the bleeding and pallid face of her unconscious daughter. The latter was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital, where Dr. Jones succeeded in reviving her. She was found to be badly hurt and stunned, and was in great agony from the pain incident to a dislocated shoulder. She had an ugly-looking scar across her forehead. She was taken to her home last night.

To Meet at the Hospital.

The Marion County Medical Society has accepted the invitation of Dr. and Mrs. C. E. Ferguson, and will meet at the City Hospital this evening. Nearly all the members of the society have accepted the invitation, and the meeting promises to be a large one. The evening will be spent socially, the religious caste of this people are of acquaintance and friendship, and in an informal discussion of a professional topic.

Scope of the Labor Paper.

The new labor paper, The Index, which is to be started next week, will, it is said, be under the charge of the labor Democrats who are dissatisfied with the way the Democratic administration in the city has been dealing with labor matters that have come up in the last two years. The first number will probably be issued the latter part of the week.

Big Power Route.

Annual Report.

to escape the assumption of infallibility. They did not believe in it. Why should it be assumed now?

"The Christian statesman had heralded the decision of the Supreme Court last November with glowing headlines, and all his patrons ate turkey over the news." According to this statement the decision of the instrument of the church and other papacy is established. The next thing to be done is to baptize the government, and when it is baptized it will be in blood. The contract by which Elliott F. Shepard had secured the promise of Congress that the world's fair should be closed on Sunday had been secured by a "rider" on the bill appropriating the money, said he, and was unconstitutional.

A Seventh-day Adventist prediction, which was printed in 1854, was read. It said simply that legislators would yield to the popular demand for Sunday laws in order to secure public favor.

The prediction applied to the speeches and sentiments of Senators of the United States when the Sunday closing of the world's fair came before them. In regard to the Sunday closing of the world's fair the Central Labor Union had asked employers, he said, to let them work on Sunday and go to the fair on Monday. Dr. Bolton had answered the proposition by saying it was only a dodge, and added: "If the union is in earnest let them try it, and we will let it be known that we are in earnest." Other Chicago divines had concurred with the sentiment. Boston Presbyterians had appealed to President Cleveland to approve the Chicago nullification of force of arms. It was suggested by Elder Colcord that true Christians appeal to God when in trouble, rather than Grover Cleveland. It could be seen that the appeal of the man at the head of this government. The effect of such a movement, if it had been carried out, would have been disastrous to the representatives of pagan nations who had come with high ideas of Christianity to the fair.

A government has a right to step in in case of conflict between two religious parties and demand peace, but what can it do when allied to one of them?" asked the preacher, and concluded by saying, his prediction was that the fair would be closed on Sunday, and that such governmental foibles and interferences and invited all of similar opinion to join them.

HAEFNER DANGEROUSLY HURT.

A Prominent Democratic Politician Thrown from a Buggy and Injured.

John Haefner lies at his home, on Ohio street, very near to death, suffering from an injury at the base of the brain, which was received at an early hour Saturday morning. The injury was presumably received by being thrown from his buggy against an electric pole on East Washington street. Haefner has been unconscious ever since the accident occurred, and has, therefore, been unable to give any account of how he came by his injuries. Haefner is a manipulator of his precinct in the interest of the Democratic party, and had attended the convention at the Hendricks Club hall on Friday night. When the convention adjourned, at 1:30 Saturday morning, in company with ex-Sheriff Henry Langenberg and a man named Youngman, he started home. All three of the men had been drinking more or less, and Haefner had been on their way home stopped in a saloon at No. 770 East Washington street where they once more imbibed freely. The dawn was approaching and the three men were on their way home, but Haefner was so drunk that he was unable to remain on his feet. The trio remained until the proprietor ejected them from the place, and Haefner, in a moment of confusion, fell from his buggy and struck his head on the base of an electric pole.

Haefner and Langenberg got into the former's buggy and drove east on Washington street, and Haefner, who was in front of the saloon, Langenberg left the buggy somewhere between the saloon and Haefner's home on Ohio street, a short distance east of the saloon. Haefner was found upon the street in an unconscious condition, and it is supposed that he fell against the effects of his drinking and the fact that he was so drunk that he was unable to remain on his feet. He was taken to his home by friends and Dr. R. W. Long was called in to attend him. The doctor's examination showed that the injury was very dangerous and might result fatally. The injury to the base of the brain was, at the first examination, thought to be a fracture of the skull, but this proved to be a mistake. The condition of the man, however, is still very critical and Dr. Long said that the things that he had to do was to keep him alive until the swelling of the brain subsided. The injured man was by no means out of danger, there being a likelihood of inflammation setting in, which would be very dangerous, and in all probability result in death. During Saturday and Sunday Haefner remained unconscious, and his condition was such that he was unable to give any account of how he came by his injuries. A number of intimate friends who called at the house yesterday were refused admission.

The family and friends of the injured man made every effort to keep the fact of his having been hurt from becoming generally known, and were very reticent in talking about the affair.

Haefner is a middle-aged man, and has a wife and family. He owns a meat stand at 29 East Market street, in partnership with Louis Wabnitz.

MOTHER AND DAUGHTER HURT.

Mrs. S. S. Hayes and Daughter Suffer in a Bad Runaway.

In a runaway accident yesterday afternoon, the wife and daughter of S. S. Hayes, residing at No. 315 West Vermont street, were seriously bruised and injured. The accident happened near the No. 2 hook and ladder company, on South Delaware street, shortly after dinner. Mrs. Hayes, her wife and daughter drove from their home to the residence of Mrs. Hayes' mother, at the corner of Delaware and Duncan streets, where they took dinner. About 2 o'clock they were out driving and Mrs. Hayes and daughter seated themselves in the vehicle. The husband opened the gate of the stable lot and his wife drove into the street, but before the horse could get in the stable lot the horse took a fright at the noise made by a group of playing children and started to run. Mrs. Hayes, who was very nervous, attempted to stop the animal, but was unsuccessful, and within the next few rods the buggy brought up against a telegraph pole. The occupants were thrown out and dragged several feet before the horse could extricate himself from the tangle, which he did by totally demolishing the vehicle. Mrs. Hayes was carried into a hook and ladder house, suffering from bruises and a severe shock, caused by the sight of the bleeding and pallid face of her unconscious daughter. The latter was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital, where Dr. Jones succeeded in reviving her. She was found to be badly hurt and stunned, and was in great agony from the pain incident to a dislocated shoulder. She had an ugly-looking scar across her forehead. She was taken to her home last night.

To Meet at the Hospital.

The Marion County Medical Society has accepted the invitation of Dr. and Mrs. C. E. Ferguson, and will meet at the City Hospital this evening. Nearly all the members of the society have accepted the invitation, and the meeting promises to be a large one. The evening will be spent socially, the religious caste of this people are of acquaintance and friendship, and in an informal discussion of a professional topic.

Scope of the Labor Paper.

The new labor paper, The Index, which is to be started next week, will, it is said, be under the charge of the labor Democrats who are dissatisfied with the way the Democratic administration in the city has been dealing with labor matters that have come up in the last two years. The first number will probably be issued the latter part of the week.

Big Power Route.

Annual Report.

Big Power Route.

THE REPORT ABOUT READY

Examiner Young About Completed His Investigation of the Suspended Bank.

Talk About the Affairs of the Indianapolis National—What Is Being Said About Some of Its Heaviest Accounts.

Edward S. Hawkins, receiver of the Indianapolis National Bank, returned to the city Saturday evening and will take charge of affairs as soon as Examiner Young has completed his inventory and forwarded his report to Controller Eckles, which will probably be to-day or to-morrow. The return of the receiver has had the effect of quickening the rumors and gossip concerning the bank's affairs which have been current since its suspension two weeks ago to-morrow morning, and correspondents of various papers sent summaries of what is being said in their papers last night. Probably much that has been said is inaccurate and exaggerated, as is apt to be the case under such circumstances at all times, but after discounting much of this talk, the impression still prevails that Mr. Hawkins, the bank's president, has been duped into making excessive loans to certain institutions. Mr. Hawkins' long experience as a banker, and his unblemished reputation are universally admitted and on all sides sympathy is expressed for him in his misfortune.

It is alleged, among other things, that the amount of the indebtedness to the bank of the Indianapolis Cabinet Company approximates $400,000, and the story goes that this loan of $300,000 was made to the Cabinet Company's president, Mr. Francis A. Coffin. Subsequently Mr. Percival B. Coffin, the secretary, is said to have borrowed a like amount. Later on $300,000 was advanced to the corporation, bringing the aggregate up to $600,000. At this stage the bank refused to make any further advances. But shortly afterwards another branch of the concern was opened at Richmond, and $80,000 more was loaned this branch. As time progressed eight other branches were established, to each of which $30,000 was extended, until twelve notes for $30,000 each had been given, swelling the total to $600,000. It is further alleged that the interest on these notes has never been paid in cash, but that the amounts due on this account have been paid by the transfer of other notes, and by the officers and associates.

The officers of the Indianapolis National Bank are also said to be indebted to the bank to the extent of between $200,000 and $300,000, the notes making up the aggregate having been given by the company in its corporate capacity, and by its officers and associates. Schuyler C. Haughey, Louis Haughey, William Haughey, and two or three other individuals in this city are said to be indebted to the bank to the extent of between $200,000 and $300,000, the notes making up the aggregate having been given by the company in its corporate capacity, and by its officers and associates.

Bank Examiner Young was seen by a reporter last night and asked when his report would be forwarded to the Controller. "I can't say just when," he replied, "but probably within a day or two—not later than Wednesday." Asked if he could give any indication of the nature of the report, he said: "Certain."

"We can probably get it from the Washington end," remarked the reporter. "As to that I cannot say," responded Mr. Young. "These reports are made of confidential character, and not infrequently even members of Congress are denied access to them. But," he added, "I can say this much: when my report is made public it will furnish some interesting reading."

This morning three big mortgages aggregating $87,000 will be filed. One is for $40,000 given by the Indianapolis Life Insurance Company, one for $27,000 by the Indianapolis Cured Hair Company and one for $20,000 given by President J. F. Haughey, covering the room full of smoke he became so frightened that he could not unlock the door. Officer Richardson, who was one of the first upon the scene, was attracted to the room by the fire. He made a dash for the door, and found it open. As soon as the door opened the girl rushed out and hid in her night robes, carrying all her wearing apparel under her arm. A guest named Stamboul, who occupied a room on the fourth floor, was awakened by the rush of the fire department, and found the hallway filled with smoke. He very calmly walked back into his room and climbed out on the fire escape. One of the firemen saw him and told him there was no danger. Stamboul kept his position and calmly viewed the work of extinguishing the fire from his lofty perch for several minutes, and then, as the smoke had cleared from the hallway, he descended via the stairway.

SPRINGFIELD WENT DOWN.

The Indianapolis Ball Club Had Little Difficulty in Winning the Game.

The Indianapolis ball team toyed with the Springfield, O., team at Lanham's Park yesterday. The Springfield club were worn out by their trip and played a very sleepy game. Keifer's fielding and A. Schaub's throwing were the fielding features. Donovan, Schaub and W. Sowders each knocked a home run and three hits each. Waters was a trifle wild, but did not let himself loose, depending upon his curves and his support. Geinands played the best game for his team, but Coorcoran did not get rattled, although the Indianapolis boys found him an easy mark and hit his delivery as they pleased, each one getting a hit and a run. The score:

INDIANAPOLIS.
	A	B	R	E	I	S	H	P	O	A	E
Fisher, 2 b.....	5	2	2	0	4	4	0	0	0	0	0	0
F. Schaub, c, p, a.....	5	2	2	0	4	4	0	0	0	0	0	0
Broderick, f.....	6	12	0	0	0	1	0	0	0	0	0	0
E. Donovan, 1 b, c.....	6	4	4	0	2	0	0	0	0	0	0	0
Waters, 1 b, p.....	5	2	2	0	4	4	0	0	0	0	0	0
Keifer, c, f.....	5	3	2	0	3	0	0	0	0	0	0	0
Harnes, 3 b, c.....	5	1	1	0	1	1	0	0	0	0	0	0
R. Schaub, p.....	5	1	1	0	1	1	0	0	0	0	0	0
Waters, 1 b, p.....	5	0	2	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0
Totals.....	48	16	23	0	27	18	5

SPRINGFIELD.

	A	B	R	E	I	S	H	P	O	A	E
Peterson, 2 b.....	5	0	1	0	1	2	0	0	0	0	0	0
Farrell, s, a.....	3	0	1	0	1	2	0	0	0	0	0	0
Farrell, s, a.....	3	0	1	0	1	2	0	0	0	0	0	0
Quinn, f.....	2	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0
Gelandt, c.....	3	0	1	0	3	0	0	0	0	0	0	0
Shook, c, f.....	4	1	1	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0
Mann, 1 b.....	4	1	1	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0
Cook, 1 f.....	4	0	1	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0
Coorcoran, p.....	4	0	1	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0
Totals.....	27	3	6	0	25	11	5

Indianapolis..... 8 0 2 4 0 1 2 0-16
Springfield..... 3 0 1 0 1 2 0-9
Earned Runs—Indianapolis, 6.
Two-base Hits—Sowders, 2; Keifer, 2.
Three-base Hits—Fisher and Waters.
Home Runs—F. Schaub, Donovan and Sowders.
Double Plays—R. Schaub to Fisher to Sowders, Fisher to Schaub to Donovan, 2; off F. Schaub, 1; off W. Sowders, 1.
Struck Out—By Waters, 4; by F. Schaub, 1; by Coorcoran.
Stolen Bases—Indianapolis, 6; Springfield, 1.
Passed Balls—Gelandt, 3.
Wild Pitches—Coorcoran, 2.

"DUTCH" USED A KNIFE.

Jeff Harris, a Street-Car Man, Stabbed by a Young Tough.

Jeff Harris, employed by the street-car company as a driver of one of the repair wagons, became involved in a slight altercation with a man known as "Dutch," last night, and was seriously stabbed. Harris was at work on a trolley wire in front of the Louisville-street station, about 8 o'clock, and was on a step-ladder, several feet from the ground. Below on the sidewalk two young fellows, "Dutch" and a friend, were annoying him, and one made the remark that he "couldn't fix anything." Harris warned the pair that they had better desist, but they continued until he became exasperated and descended to the sidewalk. A word or two ensued, and Harris stepped up to one of the men and slapped him. Instantly "Dutch" drew his knife and made a slash at Harris the blade entering his left thigh. Harris exclaimed that he had been stabbed, and, on the appearance of a number of other employees of the stable, the assailant and his partner fled. They were followed several squares, but escaped.

The wound inflicted by the knife blade, it is said, was not serious, but the officer suffering greatly from loss of blood. The report was circulated that the injury would probably prove fatal, but the physician who was summoned from Dr. Davidson street. The man who used the knife so freely is employed at the Kingan packing house, and police officers were sent down in that vicinity to look for him, but at a late hour last night he had not been captured.

SNOKE AND A SMALL PANIC.

Guests at the Circle House Frightened by Big Clouds of Smoke.

A few minutes before midnight an alarm of fire was sounded from Box 45, at the corner of Meridian and Washington streets. The fire, which was extinguished without material loss, was in the cellar of the Circle House, a half block north, on Meridian street, and had made considerable headway among a lot of old boxes and rubbish before it was discovered. Herman Ackelov, the proprietor of the hotel, and Albert Keiser, the night clerk, were sitting in front of the hotel when they noticed a large volume of smoke issuing from the cellar. They rushed to the corner and sounded the alarm. The fire started about the middle of the building under the west end of the dining-room, which is immediately in the rear of the office. The loss will not exceed $500 and a large part of this is due to the smoke, which spread through the entire building. The loss is fully covered by insurance. The building is owned by Mrs. Rudna, proprietress of the Circle Park Hotel.

A number of the guests were seized with the usual terror that takes possession of a person in a burning building, and some of them became very much excited till they learned that there was no danger from the flames. Gregor McGregor, a tile setter, was the last of the guests to leave the building. He had retired early and was in the land of nod when the fire broke out. He awoke at the noise of the fire, and was awakened by the rush of the fire department, and found the hallway filled with smoke. He very calmly walked back into his room and climbed out on the fire escape. One of the firemen saw him and told him there was no danger. Stamboul kept his position and calmly viewed the work of extinguishing the fire from his lofty perch for several minutes, and then, as the smoke had cleared from the hallway, he descended via the stairway.

As soon as the door opened the girl rushed out and hid in her night robes, carrying all her wearing apparel under her arm. A guest named Stamboul, who occupied a room on the fourth floor, was awakened by the rush of the fire department, and found the hallway filled with smoke. He very calmly walked back into his room and climbed out on the fire escape. One of the firemen saw him and told him there was no danger. Stamboul kept his position and calmly viewed the work of extinguishing the fire from his lofty perch for several minutes, and then, as the smoke had cleared from the hallway, he descended via the stairway.

As soon as the door opened the girl rushed out and hid in her night robes, carrying all her wearing apparel under her arm. A guest named Stamboul, who occupied a room on the fourth floor, was awakened by the rush of the fire department, and found the hallway filled with smoke. He very calmly walked back into his room and climbed out on the fire escape. One of the firemen saw him and told him there was no danger. Stamboul kept his position and calmly viewed the work of extinguishing the fire from his lofty perch for several minutes, and then, as the smoke had cleared from the hallway, he descended via the stairway.

As soon as the door opened the girl rushed out and hid in her night robes, carrying all her wearing apparel under her arm. A guest named Stamboul, who occupied a room on the fourth floor, was awakened by the rush of the fire department, and found the hallway filled with smoke. He very calmly walked back into his room and climbed out on the fire escape. One of the firemen saw him and told him there was no danger. Stamboul kept his position and calmly viewed the work of extinguishing the fire from his lofty perch for several minutes, and then, as the smoke had cleared from the hallway, he descended via the stairway.